Course Outline

Discover how ancient strategic leadership principles can sharpen decision-making, reduce conflict and accelerate career and organisational momentum through varied vision and foresight. Our course translates Sun Tzu's enduring insights into practical leadership frameworks, reviewing case studies throughout history while allowing you to apply key concepts: to prepare better, lead with character and create advantage without unnecessary confrontation.

Long before tactics matter, clarity of intent, problem solving and preparation decide outcomes. This course teaches how to 'map' terrain, gain competitive advantage, internal strengths and manage hidden risks, ensuring trainees enter decisions via critical thinking to attain growth. You'll learn simple diagnostics to know when to push, when to pause and when to avoid costly skirmishes altogether.

Our trainer brings a blend of classified UK military and governmental experience, fused with deep cross-cultural insight, drawing on wisdoms from both East and West to deliver a truly transformative learning journey.

The training course lasts two full days starting at 9.30am until 5.00pm, and is inclusive of course materials, certificate, lunch, refreshments and snacks, along with complimentary four week post course support and assistance.
